The Idea of the Balloon.
The first practical idea of the balloon originated in the latter half of the eighteenth century, when the Montgolfier brothers, noticing how smoke rose upward into the air, conceived the idea of filling a bag with smoke. The development of this idea resulted in the construction of the first hot air balloon in June, 1783. This consisted of a spherical cloth bag about thirty-five feet in diameter and inflated over a fire fed with bundles of chopped straw. The next step was the use of hydrogen gas, and the balloon was practically invented as used today. The use of this gas was the idea of M. Charles, a professor of natural philosophy at Paris.

Beauty of the Silver Acacia.
There are many miracles. A silver tree is always one of them. When it rains your heart is likely to be broken because the silver acacia has its bright eyes so filled with shining tears that it may split them any minute from the weight, and its death means the end of joy. This is the one acacia that seems almost at its loveliest when not in bloom. It is like a hand illumined edition of fairy stories bound in bright gray silk, with tassels for book marks. Every trembling leaf makes you think of the kiss of a child. When you pass the tree you feel baby arms about your neck. You may exist without a silver acacia, but you cannot be said to live without one.—Los Angeles Times.

The Dragon Fly.
It is hard to realize that the brilliant dragon fly, which darts through the air at such terrific speed, was once an ugly, mud colored, slow moving inhabitant of some pool or lake. These mud dragons, or dragon fly nymphs, conceal themselves in the mud at the bottom of the pond where they are born and cover up their faces with innocent looking claws, which are in reality powerful gripping organs with spines on the inside. If you put a mud dragon into your aquarium and watch it you will see those claws open and stretch forward, grip their victim and convey it to the mouth that lies concealed behind them.—Youth's Companion.

A Peculiarity of Carrots.
Although carrots are among the most commonly cooked vegetables in various forms—stewed, boiled, puree, soups and introduced into ragouts, braises and mirepoix—yet they are among the least digestible of vegetables; but, strange to say, notwithstanding their indigestibility, so far as regards form and substance, they are not known to cause any digestive derangement.

The great affection which cooks and their masters have for carrots can only be explained by their color, which makes an impression on the eye, and their flavor and sweetness, which speak to the palate.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Grin!

Grin, and gloom will turn to fun;
Grin, and see old trouble run;
Grin, and see the clouds brush by;
Grin, and see the sunny sky.

—Luke McLuke.

Weep, and your tear glands lose their juice;
Weep, and your face looks like the deuce;
Weep, and you make the people stare;
Weep, and you don't get anywhere.

Paw Knows Everything.

Willie—Paw, what is a linguist?
Paw—A linguist is a man who can master any tongue but that of his wife, my son.

Maw—Willie, you go out in the kitchen and do your lessons.

Correct.

We do not want our fallings booked
When we know we have erred;
We'd rather have them overlooked
Than have them overheard.

The Wise Fool.

"It takes a lot to live," sighed the sage.
"And a house on the lot," added the fool.

Wuff!

His wife is always in command,
I speak of Mr. Dowling;
She makes him lead a dog's life, and
That's why he's always growling.

Should Say Not!

"The good die young," quoted the old fogey.
"You are not referring to jokes, are you?" demanded the grouch.

Huh!

An awful goose

For he cuts loose
When he gets tight.

Where the Eats and Drinks Are Thick.

"The members of the Bar Rail Polishers' union are all strong for war," says Luke McLuke, "but if war was declared you couldn't get twenty of the 20,000,000 members to enlist." No, and the few who did enlist would want jobs in the commissary and canteen departments.—Arkansas Democrat.

When a Fellow Dies.

[With apologies to Luke McLuke.]
I notice when a fellow dies, no matter what his sin,
Some kindly chap will call to mind the good fellow he'd been;
His friends forget his weaknesses and on his virtues dwell,
While others get their hammers out and start to "knock" right well.
I know that when I go to rest I'll get my share of blame,
For human nature the world o'er is just about the same.
But if it's all the same to you, I'll take the meat and bread
And give the fruit and flowers to Reilly (when I'm dead).
—Locked Antler.

Is He That Thin?

Fine and Superfine.

Did you ever notice what a fine time the man who is fond of peanuts can have for 5 cents?—Luke McLuke in Cincinnati Enquirer.

We have that, Luke, and also the super-fine job of noise making and "mussing up" that he is generally able to accomplish.—Zanesville (O.) Signal.

When you win some other man loses.

Luke McLuke Says:

Once in awhile you will meet a young man who modestly admits that he doesn't know everything, but he will usually add that he knows everything worth knowing.

Any farmer can tell you that city people get up too late in the morning to do an honest day's work.

It is possible for a man to be lucky enough to find his soul mate and his helpmate in the same woman, but it only happens about once in each 10,000 marriages.

You do not have to abuse a man to get him mad. Just start in and begin praising his enemies.

Every now and then you run into a man who gives you the impression that he is about as useful as the holes in a Swiss cheese.

If it cost $1,000,000 to take out a license to hunt trouble most of the lawyers and undertakers would starve to death.

About this time of year a lot of housekeepers will take the screens out of the windows and let the poor flies out after keeping them shut indoors all summer.

AUTOMOBILE MAINTENANCE.

Don't overlook the "after cost" in buying a car. Take any car you choose and compare with a Ford the following items: License, Gasoline, Cylinder Oil, Tires, Tubes, Repairs and Depreciation. Don't pass these lightly because they will be brought for cibly to your attention later on. Take your pencil and get the FACTS as to cost of the above items on each car and figure it for 2 or 3 years. If you are fair with yourself you'll find that the Ford will SAVE you about $500 in 3 years in above items! Think of it! More than the first cost of the car. In addition to this saving the Ford gives you BETTER service all the time.
